DR. TIMMINS BUYS LYON HOMESTEAD

Dr. N. A. Timmins has bought the Lyon's property adjacent to the Court House and the report has it that the doctor will convert the old mansion into a hospital. This is good news for Bedford and Bedford County. We hope the amiable doctor will see his way clear to proceed in this line. Bedford needs a hospital. Willing to Wait 57 Years to Pass

Profiteers' Tariff.
Senator Robison of Arkansas voices the general opinion of the un-rejoiced public when he says of the pending Profiteers' Tariff bill: "In so far as the statement of the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. Lenroot) is concerned that the bill (Tariff bill) will not pass until the expiration of 57 years. I desire to say that unless the committee pursues in an intense degree the practice it has adopted within the last few days, namely of receding from or revising the important amendments which it has proposed to the House provisions, it would be better for the United States if it were 57 years before this bill was passed."

HER 70th BIRTHDAY
Last Friday evening when Mrs. Elizabeth Koontz returned to her home after spending the day with friends, she was much surprised to find a group of relatives and friends seated around a long table on the lawn, awaiting her return.
After cheerful greetings, they all rose and joined in singing the Long Meter Dohology, after which a bountiful supper was served. The remainder of the evening was pleasantly occupied with music and conversation. Mrs. Koontz received many beautiful and useful gifts, together with the best wishes of her friends for many more happy birthdays.

Those present were her two sisters, Mrs. Katharine Wright of New Paris and Mrs. A. M. Horner of Windber, her three brothers, Mr. Sam Beckley of Freedom, Ohio, Mr. James Beckley of New Paris and Mr. Chas Beckley of Pleasantville; Mrs. James Beckley, Mrs. Susan Koontz, Mrs. Z. FEEDING FATHER
We know the latest diet rules and raise the children by them; they keep ma slim and Susan pump, but rather will not try them. Man wants but little here below nor wants that little long, but pa wants coffee thrice a day and wants that coffee strong. We know that fruits are good for pa, we steam them, boil them, bake them, we cook them fifty-seven ways but can't make father take them. We serve him eggs in many styles, we scramble poach and beat them; they must be fried like tough raw hide or father will not eat them. The healthful greens and stringless beans his palate do not tickle, but he will shout for saurkraut, nine wienies and a pickle. He's busting all nutrition rules in spirit and in letter, he wants fried spuds three times a day, the greasier the better. If pa still stubbornly persists, Dame Nature's wrath to brave, we fear, by gum, that he will come to an untimely grave. Just how he'll fare when over there and what he'll chew we know not. How will he eat celestial meat without a soggy doughnut? Above the choir they'll hear our sire, above its loud hosanna, he'll criticize the lack of pies and kick about the manna.

FATAL SHOOTING AT CLAYSBURG

Last Saturday evening while John Weyandt, aged 24 was protecting his mother-in-law from what was deemed a brutal attack of her son, Dewey Walter, Walter became enraged at Weyandt, grabbed a shotgun and fired at Weyandt, the contents of the gun striking Weyandt on the side of the face, tearing off his ear, blowing out his right eye and frontal bone. Some of the shot entered the brain. This caused his death after he was removed to the hospital at Roaring Spring where he remained in a semi-conscious condition till he died.

After young Walter committed the deed he turned the gun on himself and blew his lower jaw off, so the report goes. His condition is not so serious and if he survives his dastardly deed he will be held on a murder charge.

Hughy Moore

On Wednesday morning about 10 o'clock the death angel visited the home of Hughy Moore and took his spirit in flight. Mr. Moore suffered from a weak heart ever since he came from the war when he was gassed and received a few gunshot wounds. He was 31 years old and was the son of J. Ross and Jennie B. Moore and has as brothers who survive, John of Wilkensburg, Charlie and Raymond, at home and sisters, Mrs. Bertha Wagner of Wilkensburg and Mrs. Ethel Biddle, of Bedford. The funeral will take place today (Friday) at the Bedford Lutheran Church conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. H. B. Carney. Interment will be made in the Bedford Cemetery.

Mr. Moore was 18 months overseas where he served as an engineer.

W. C. T. U. COUNTY CONVENTION

The thirteenth annual Convention of the Bedford County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Hopewell, Wednesday and Thursday, June 28—29 in the Methodist church.

An excellent program is in preparation and local unions are urged to be fully represented by regularly elected delegates.

Mrs. R. C. Robison, president of Allegheny County W. C. T. U. will be the convention speaker and will also be present and speak during the Wednesday afternoon session.

The County Executive will meet at 11 A. M. Wednesday and the convention proper will open at 1.30 p. m.

L. D. Shuck, County President
W. C. T. U.

In remembrance of those loyal members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows who have passed away since the incorporation of the local lodge, the members of Hyndman Lodge No. 983 conducted a Memorial service in the United Evangelical Church on Wednesday evening of last week.

The inspiring message of Rev. B. H. Hart, pastor of the First M. E. Church of York, Pa., was on that union choir and supported by the crowded audience. The spirit of services well rendered by those for whom this memorial was held was felt by everyone present. Appropriate music was ably rendered by a union choir and a very nice parade preceded the services in which about one hundred fifty Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias participated.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU NOTES

Bedford County's Dairy Judging team, Lewis Imler, Gordon Hull and Harold Hoover report an interesting and instructive visit while at the Pennsylvania State College during the Junior Farmers' program last week. The boys had gone up under the direction of the Farm Bureau to complete with teams from other counties and had won their places through a county-wide elimination contest at the Bedford Fair last Fall.

Upon arrival at State College Monday evening they were subject to a program of fun as well as instruction and although they did not win prizes in the State wide contest all three gave a good account of themselves.

Dr. J. M. Thomas, President of the College, in addressing both adults and junior farmers showed the $5000.00 potato sent by the potato growers of Somerset County which contained a subscription for that amount of money toward a new hospital on the campus. Over $50,000.00 has been subscribed toward the $200,000.00 fund which the potato growers of Pennsylvania are raising for a hospital at Penn State.

The hospital fund which is being rapidly raised by the potato growers themselves is part of the Two Million Dollar building fund drive which alumnae and friends of the College are putting on. The two Million Dollar building fund is to provide for health and welfare buildings only.

Penn State like other land grant colleges, the one higher educational institution wholly owned by the Commonwealth to provide higher education free of tuition for Pennsylvania boys and girls, has been hampered in the past for lack of sufficient appropriation from the Legislature. As a result of this class rooms, laboratories and other building facilities are crowded to the limit.

Last year the institution was compelled to turn away one thousand Pennsylvania boys and girls who sought admittance. The present hospital contains only eight beds and must serve the sick from three thousand students.

President Thomas told the farmers of the effort being made by the College to keep the farmers informed on the new developments in the Agricultural world, and deplored the fact that not enough funds are available for additional research which is right now of vital importance to farmers generally. He also gave reasons why the college must depend upon the State for maintenance and urge Pennsylvania farmers to give their help to the movement.

FORMER BEDFORD GIRLS HONORED
Miss J. Ruth Gibson, a former graduate of the Bedford High School graduated from Fresno State College on June 8th, 1922.

Ruth was one of seven highest honor pupils out of a class of one hundred and sixty, having a gold seal attached to her diploma.

Miss Mary B. Gibson, graduate from the new Fresno High School in a class of two hundred and sixty her grades recommended her to the University of California.

In the short time I have been on duty as Chief of Police of Bedford, I notice there are many automobile drivers who are very careless in respect to obeying the laws. Last Saturday night I took the number of fifteen cars that had no tail lights and it has been about this way ever since I went on duty. This looks to me like carelessness and not accident. Some cars had only one light in front, others have their tags dirty and the paint off. A lot of complaint has come in about muffler cutouts being used. If your tags are no good and the paint is coming off, the Highway Department have been advertising for months to send them in and they will replace them without cost. It will be your own fault if you get pinched as it is my intention to enforce the law and I am giving you this notice so that you will be careful.

IMPROVEMENTS MARTIN HILL RESERVATION
Harrisburg, Pa., June 15—Forester William Byers, of McConnellsburg, reports that important improvements have been made this spring in the forest roads of Bedford County. The Blankley road leading off from the main road between Rainsburg and Chaneyville has been improved and now makes accessible for the public, large acres of State forest lands. Along this road are many excellent springs and interesting tree plantations.

The Beans Cove road which connects with the Blankley road has also been improved. It leads to the foot of Martin Hill on which the Martin Hill observation tower is located. This hill enjoys the distinction of being the second highest point in the whole state. From the tower may be seen some of the most beautiful views in southern Pennsylvania.

The Sweet Root road which also connects with the Blankley road, has been opened up for travel. It runs through Sweet Root Gap in which is found a small tract of virgin hemlock, which has been officially set aside as the "Martin Hill Hemlock Monument." This is one of the few tracts of virgin timber that remains in Pennsylvania, and a visit to it is worth while.

CHICAGO AND NORWICH ADD TO DEMOCRATIC VICTORIES.
Incidental to the Iowa primary election there was a judicial election in Chicago and a city election in Norwich, Conn., on the same day in which five sitting Democratic judges were re-elected together with one Republican candidate, an alderman, who defeated a Republican candidate for re-election backed by Mayor Thompson by 36,000 plurality.

Norwich, Conn., elected a Democratic mayor, a complete Democratic ticket of alderman and councilmen by a large majority, which makes the Democratic victories in city elections in that state complete—every city now having a Democratic mayor.

The verdict of disapproval of Republican reaction is an uniform in the East as in the West whenever the people have a chance to express themselves at the polls.

MANY TOWERS ERECTED IN PENNA.

Blue Knob, Fire Tower

During the latter part of the summer of 1921, the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry erected fifty (50) sixty (60) foot steel towers. Their primary purpose is the detection of forest fires. How well they have fulfilled their purpose can be determined by the number of fires reported.

Of all these fifty (50) towers, one (1) is preeminent in several respects. Blue Knob tower on Blue Knob, two and one half (2½) miles north-east of Pavia, Bedford County, and fourteen (14) miles south of Altoona, Blair County, stands on the highest point in the state, an elevation of thirty-one hundred and sixty-five (3,165) feet above sea level.

On Wednesday, May 31st, 1922, Walter Leach, District Forester, Mount Union, W. L. Byers, District Forester, McConnellsburg and Assistant District Forester, T. E. Shaw, Johnstown, met on Blue Knob tower to determine where auxiliary towers would be necessary. The day was very clear but none of these men imagined what a large amount of country could be seen from the tower.

They ascended the tower. Their highest expectations were exceeded. Below and beyond them lay six (6) counties, Bedford, Blair, Somerset, Huntingdon, Fulton and Cambria. To the east ten (10) mountains could be clearly seen, the furthest which was Tuscarora Mountain on the line between Fulton and Franklin Counties fifty (50) miles away. Between Blue Knob and Tuscarora lay nine (9) other mountains; Dunning, Tussey, Coot Hill, Broad, Siding Hill, Rays Hill, Jacks Mountain, Black Log and Shade mountain all clearly visible.

Altho the point on which Tuscarora tower is located could be seen, the tower could not be seen due to the blending of the back-ground with the gray of the tower. Jack's mountain in Huntingdon County is visible from Three Springs to the point of Mt. Union and thence along the Juniata river to the Lewistown Narrows, a distance of fifty (50) miles.

Tussey mountain is visible from Martin Hill in the southern part of Bedford County to a point near the Center and Huntingdon County lines, a distance of seventy-five (75) miles.

The water tank at the Cresson Sanatorium is clearly visible, eighteen (18) miles away. North of the water tank the Alleghenies can be clearly followed for twenty (20) miles.

Laurel Ridge, north of Johnstown can be seen. From a few miles north of the gap near Johnstown to the Maryland line, below Hyndman, Laurel Ridge was in clear view.

These are the extreme points of visibility from Blue Knob tower on a clear day. The area covered is 5,600 square miles. The timberland in view, amounts to 200,000 acres, or more than three hundred (300) square miles.

To reach the tower, the mountain road from Pavia to Blue Knob must be taken. Near the crest of the road a sign, "See Pennsylvania from fifty foot steel tower", will be seen. Here you will have to walk a distance of one mile to reach the tower. part of the road has been built to haul the tower, but has never been completed. When you reach the tower you will see the towerman's cabin. Here he lives five and one half (5½) months in the year. On the door of the cabin you will find a "Visitors Register". Enter your name and address. A complete record of all persons who visit these towers is desired.

The Pennsylvania Department of Forestry feels sure that one visit to Blue Knob or to any of the steel towers recently erected, will make you an ardent booster of Forestry, whether in Pennsylvania or elsewhere. You often we lose sight of our neighbors and his problems. Get up on Blue Knob, look over six counties and you will come to the realization that your neighbor, two or three counties away, is still your neighbor and not so far distant after all.

Sparing Bill's Girl

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Francesca—pretty, scatter-brained, flirtatious Francesca—was honest-to-goodness worried. So worried was she that her usually blithe step lagged as she walked homeward through the bracing, crisp autumn air, and her fair brow was puckered in three fretful wrinkles. How under the sun was she going to get rid of poor old Bill?

You see, Bill Thorpe was the very first one of Francesca's victims—and there had been many—to cause her so much as the tiniest twinge of regret. Perhaps this was because she had known him since kindergarten days, or perhaps it was because she had, figuratively speaking, walked over his prostrate body with a more heartless, roughshod tread even than usual, presuming on his good nature. However that may be, the fact remains that Francesca was experiencing a very real desire to spare Bill the pain she felt she was going to occasion him when he came to see her that night.

"May I run up this evening, Fran?" he had telephoned her. "I have something that's—well, something I want to tell you." And even over the coldly impersonal wire his voice had rung strangely vibrant. It had come at last!

Now, between you and me, deep down under her genuine concern for Bill, Francesca harbored a motive other than altruism in breaking definitely with Bill. For how could she expect, as long as he hung around her like a faithful watch-dog, alert to fetch and carry, that Roger Benedict would propose? Roger was not the sort of man to interfere with a rival. And so sweetly, seating herself remotely in a corner.

"I—hang it, Frank, I've got to get it over with." Bill helped himself to a chair opposite and, looking quite miserable, paused in what he was saying. Then he braced himself and plunged. "We've known each other for years and years and years and—"

"Years," completed Francesca. "Yes, Bill." After all, with Roger gone, it might be the sensible thing to hang on to Bill for a while.

"Well, I've always thought, Frank, it would be you and I, but—well, it isn't! I've gone and gotten engaged to another girl and—and, doggone it, I love her!"

Francesca rose slowly, not so much in dismay as in utter perplexity. Bill, her property, engaged to another girl? Good heavens, and she had been worrying about sparing his feelings! And was this the way it felt when somebody turned you down—the way she supposed her victims of the past had felt—yes, as she had expected Bill himself would feel this very evening? Well, she was merely being paid in her own coin. It was up to her to be sporting, as Roger, Betty's Roger, would say.

"Congratulations, Bill," she managed with a brave smile and held out her hand. "Is it some one I know?"

"Know? Why who should it be but Betty Lane?" Bill's tone was rapturous.

"But—but—" the girl's heart was pounding.

"She told me a little while ago that she almost let the cat out of the bag this afternoon and would have only—well, she knew I was coming tonight to tell you myself!"

"You're in luck and she's a darling!" and there was no doubting the enthusiasm in Francesca's voice.

But several nights later, as, in the arms of Roger, Francesca told the whole story, she finished with a vow that was solemn if brief. "Never again for me, Roger! I'm through with flirting."

"Thank heaven," said Roger fervently. "It's a promise I'll see you keep!"

Working of Tortoise Shell Into Marketable Material Calls for Great Care and Attention.

A tortoise shell is harder and more brittle than ordinary horn. Heat and pressure are practically the only means which can be employed in working it, and it is impossible to work tortoise shell at a great heat, since the coloring pigment easily liquefies and absorbs the shell, thereby greatly lessening its value. Heavy pressure is also impossible, owing to its brittle character. The plates of carapace, or black shell, are first separated from the skeleton by the application of gentle heat, and then flattened by a similar process. The superficial irregularities are next rasped off, and the material is polished ready for molding into any desired shape. Larger or thicker plates are produced by a process which requires great care and attention. Two surfaces are first rasped and cleaned, and are gently heated and pressed together. The heat liquefies them, making an invisible joint. Tortoise shell combs are cut by highly ingenious twinning machine, so-called; two combs are cut from the same plate, so that the teeth of one dovetail into the spaces of the other.

Extracting a Cork.

One of the most puzzling things in the world is to let a cork out of a bottle. Nevertheless, it can be done easily enough, if you know how. Immerse the bottle in cold water for a few minutes, without allowing any of the fluid to enter. Then take a baton and poke with it until you have succeeded in impaling the smaller end of the cork. This accomplished, you can pull the cork up into the lower part of the bottle neck, though you cannot get it out. Now immerse the bottle in hot water and presently the cork will fly out of its own accord, forced out by the expansion of the air inside. The way it works is quite surprising and affords an interesting lesson in physics. The performance may be facilitated somewhat by greasing the inside of the bottle neck.

Word Blindness.

Word blindness has been discovered by school clinics. Two cases have lately been noted in one district. A boy of nearly thirteen years of age, healthy of body and normal of mind in all ordinary respects, can only now, after nine years' regular attendance, just read words of two letters. "Of" he comprehends instantly; "offer" floors him. Oddly enough, though in mental arithmetic equal to any boy of his age, this "word blindness" extends to the reading of numbers. He will, for instance, read "2" and is dumfounded at "122." The difficulty appears to be wholly in a failure to recognize written or printed words or numbers.

Jews Did Not Invent Harp.

Those in the habit of answering quickly will probably give the Jews credit for having invented the harp, for did not David play on it in 1063 B. C.? But the birth of this musical instrument takes us much farther back into antiquity, until we cross the path of the Roman Jubal, who actually made the invention in the year 3875 B. C. The harp has ever played a great part in legend and history. That of the Irish monarch, Brian Boroieme, is now in the College museum at Dublin, where it was placed in 1785. Ten years later an instrument maker named Brad improved and patented the harp much in the same form as it is used today.—New York Sun.

MARY MARIE

ELEANOR H. PORTER

WHEN "Just David" was published readers thought it the most adorable story of a child ever written; then appeared "Pollyanna" by the same authoress and it took the country by storm; now she has given us "Mary Marie," which is better than either.

This wonderful child was Mary to her staid, bookish, serious-minded father. To her vivacious, laughter-loving mother she was Marie; so they named her Mary Marie, and to keep peace in the family she had to develop a dual nature in keeping with the two names.

South American Industry. The sap of the sapodilla tree is very largely used in the manufacture of chewing gum. The tree is cultivated in Mexico and Central America, and the method of collecting the sap, called "chicle," is very similar to that employed in extracting maple sugar. Mexico alone in 1910 exported chicle valued at $170,000, which will give you a good idea of the extent of the chewing gum industry.

PORTLAND CEMENT

SOMETIMES a porch is the one thing needed to add that cozy look every home should have. If so, the three things to consider are expense, appearance and permanence.

Three men in your community will gladly answer these three questions—the contractor, the architect and the building material dealer. In fact the dealer will help you deal with the other two.

Your building material dealer can give you useful information and advice. On building materials it is safe to follow his judgment. He will recommend Atlas Portland Cement, "the Standard by which all other makes are measured."

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

Uniontown.—Fewer fatalities were called to the attention of the coroner of Fayette county in May than for many months. Only 22 deaths were investigated by Conner Baum and ten of these were found to be due to natural causes. Only two murders, a low rate for the county, were reported.

Lewistown.—The school board refused to reconsider its action in electing Walter F. Fisher to succeed C. D. Booher as principal of the high school.

Harrisburg.—Expenditure of the $40,000 appropriated by the legislature of 1917 as an emergency fund and never used was authorized for construction of the formal entrance to the State Capitol Park and completing terraces and changes necessitated by the laying out of new driveways now approaching completion by the board of public grounds and buildings. Plans have been made for a granite entrance, but the funds available will not cover the cost. The board will not award contracts for supplies until return of Governor Sproul. The building at the Western Penitentiary burned last spring will be replaced from the state insurance fund.

York.—Great chiefs of the Great Council of Pennsylvania, Improved Order of Red Men, were raised to the offices to which they were elected by Thomas Sedgwick, of Indian, the great senior sagamore of the great council of the United States. Past and new officers were presented with gifts after the ceremony, and Charles Shaffer, of Pittsburgh, was elected a past grand sachem to fill the unexpired term of John M. Coombe, of Mahanoy City, who died the past year. An amendment was approved to reduce the per capita tax next year for the state orphans' board from $1 to 90 cents. There at present are 1000 orphans being cared for by the state body, and it is estimated that their cost of maintenance will not exceed $50,000.

Allentown.—As if prohibition were not enough to take the joy out of life, the Lehigh County Humane Society decided to put a stop to the sport of rooster chasing at picnics. At almost every Sunday school outing and family reunion in Lehigh from time immemorial a rooster chase has been one of the chief events on the program. The Humane Society thinks it cruel, and will invoke the most drastic measures to put the pastime into the list of has-beens.

Pottsville.—Mrs. Amanda Leiser died from burns caused by her efforts to prevent a bonfire from igniting the clothes of a number of children. While Mrs. Leiser was putting the children out of reach of the flames a breeze wafted the fire in her direction.

Harrisburg.—Pennsylvania's types of highway construction have been studied this year by officials from a dozen states where extensive road programs are about to be undertaken. The "experimental" roads in this state have been carefully gone over, and copies of the results of tests have been made for the officers elsewhere.

Pottsville.—Six citizens of Girardville were arrested and placed under bail for court by Alderman Davies, of this city, charged with diverting the electric current from the meters in their homes, hoping to reduce their monthly light bills. The Eastern Pennsylvania Light, Heat and Power company was the complainant.

Pottsville.—Scores of foreigners who applied for naturalization papers were refused because they dodged the draft during the war by claiming exemption on the ground that they were subjects of other countries. The government had representatives present with the records of the war department and, whenever objections were made on this ground, the court sustained them. Objections were filed even to those who failed to fill out their questionnaires. A number of other applicants were held up because they have families living in Europe. This, the government contends, does not indicate a stable residence here.

York.—General John Sedgwick Post, G. A. R., of this city, will conduct a campaign to raise $100,000 for the purchase of a modest post home. The woman's relief corps will assist in the campaign. The civil war veterans at present lease quarters several flights up, and few of them are able to climb the stairs to the meeting rooms.

Harrisburg.—Mrs. Margaret R. Alexander, of Philadelphia, was elected grand worthy matron of the Order of Eastern Star at the session of the state convention here. Mrs. Anna L. Dayer, of Pittsburgh, was elected associate grand worthy matron. Election of a Philadelphia woman as head of the state organization, it was said, indicates selection of Philadelphia for next year's meeting.

Catawissa.—A walnut tree more than 100 years old, on the property of Wood Helwig, near here, was struck by lightning and shattered.

Allentown.—Ray and Harold, two of the triplet sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Reinhard, of Upper Merion, born February 18, died only four hours apart. They were thriving until a week ago, when they were stricken with inflammation of the bowels. Clayton, the surviving triplet is well.

Danville.—Ptomaine poison believed to have resulted from eating radishes caused the death of Adolph E. Stinger, 68 years old, here.

Pottsville.—Joseph Kulwicz, a Shenandoah boy, who is in jail here, confessed to County Detective Davis that he robbed John Krusinsky, a Shenandoah saloonkeeper, of $650, most of which money he got from a family Bible, where the money had been placed for safe keeping. The boy got entrance to the house by a window and after ransacking the place and finding only a small sum, he struck it rich when he opened the Bible purely out of curiosity.

Pittsburgh.—Six Westwood boys were brought to county detective headquarters here, charged with stripping 1000 feet of wire from poles of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Telephone company. The lads said they used the wire in making radio sets, and the cases were dropped when the parents offered to pay the damages.

State College.—President Thomas received word from McKean, Potter and Luzerne county potato growers that they will subscribe to a fund which the potato industry proposes to raise for the erection of a new hospital at the college. The present hospital has only eight beds for the care of 3200 young men and women students.

Pittsburgh.—Being held for court without bail is fast becoming an everyday occurrence in the life of Paul Swiger, who has a long string of aliases. Swiger, who hails from near Philadelphia, told the police, when arrested, that he had robbed 200 houses in this county recently. A South Side magistrate held him on 14 charges of burglary several days ago. Now Swiger has made the rounds of the police courts, being held on 10 charges at the East End police station and six charges at Wilkensburg. He will be given hearings later at the North Side police station and by county authorities. According to the police, the man is wanted in Delaware county on a charge of bigamy. He was married at Wellsburg, W. Va., the day before his arrest.

New Castle.—Striking ironmen in the employ of the New Castle Electric company returned to work. They had been out since June 1, after a dispute about working conditions and will receive the old scale, 82½ cents an hour.

Bethlehem.—Several local institutions are beneficiaries under the will of the late Mrs. M. B. Hoppes, whose estate is valued at more than $200,000. Lehigh University will get $10,000 to establish a scholarship and St. Luke's Hospital $10,000 to endow a bed. The Children's Home will receive $3000. Several colored employees at the hotels run by the deceased will get $3000 each, and Trinity Episcopal church will receive $5000. The bulk will go to Millard F. Church, a nephew, and Grace D. Bayles and David Rees, Mrs. Hoppes' secretary and business manager.

Harrisburg.—Seventeen-year-old locusts have been found by agents of the state agricultural department in Dauphin county. One of the locusts which was captured and is on exhibition was a "W" on each wing.

Pittsburgh.—Gilbert W. Kelly, 19-year-old Swissvale youth, convicted in connection with the robbery and killing of a department store bank messenger, was sentenced to from 12 years and 11 months to 20 years in the Western Penitentiary. Similar sentences were imposed some time ago on Rufus Costner and Harry Brooks, members of the gang which held up the messenger. Their leader, Benjamin Stokes, escaped with the money. Two petitions urging leniency, signed by 400 residents of Swissvale and sixty-four doctors, were presented to Judge Kline before he passed sentence. The physicians expressed the belief that Kelly had grown so rapidly as a boy that his mind did not develop and that he was used as a "tool" by Stokes.

Berwick.—Theodore Benedicto and Charles Trevano, of La Salle street, were arrested and held under bail on charges of violating the liquor law, following a fire which destroyed Benedicto's garage. An automobile was burned and in the ruins was found a charred keg, which still contained three gallons of whisky, unharmed by the fire.

Seranton.—Five men in an automobile drove up to the hotel of Dominick Parry, at Thropp, smashed in the door and shot Parry through the thigh with a charge from a shotgun. The men fled in their machine and a search is being made for them by the state police and county authorities. Parry is in a serious condition at a local hospital.

McAdoo.—An examination for filling the vacant postmastership here will be held July 8.

Bethlehem.—Mrs. Samuel Hart, aged 44, and the city's heaviest woman, weighing 400 pounds, dropped dead in Holy Infancy Catholic church, here.

Harrisburg.—State highway department officers are looking for numerous builders when the flames are submitted on the June projects in the latter part of the month. Many applications for plans and specifications have been requested and in some cases bids—blankets have been asked on a dozen projects.

Lock Haven.—Arthur Wise, of Hope Hose company, was unanimously elected chief of the Lock Haven fire department.

Hazleton.—This city plans to raise $250,000 by popular subscription for the purchase of Pardee Square to be used as a public park.

Hazleton.—Notwithstanding the high cost of building materials and labor, this city is enjoying a building boom.

Seranton.—Regional meetings of forest rangers will take place here and at Williamsport, Emporium, Petersburg and Mont Alto in July and August.

UP TO CONGRESS TO KEEP PLEDGES

PRESIDENT THINKS IT WILL YET REDEEM ITSELF, BUT HE DECLINES TO DICTATE.

HIS PROGRAM NOT EQUIVOCAL

Harding Has Given the Law Makers Clear List of Recommendations for Legislation and Leaves the Full Responsibility on Them.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY

Washington.—Members of the cabinet say the President believes this congress will yet redeem itself. And, furthermore, he believes, according to these same members, that if the legislative body does redeem itself in the estimation of the public without any assistance from the executive branch of the government, a long and important step will have been taken toward bringing the two branches of the government back to the relationship which the Constitution intended should exist between them.

If, on the other hand, the President should at this time step in and exert the powerful influence which a President always has at his command, and thereby force the legislative body to do his bidding, the congress would find itself on a lower level than ever before. As one member of the cabinet put it, the President is trying to help the congress get back to the place in the scheme of government which it is entitled to occupy. The remarkable thing about the situation is, it is pointed out, that the Republicans in the legislative body do not seem to have any real appreciation of what the President is trying to do. Day by day the Republican leaders in the two houses run to the White House and in effect say to the President: "If you do not assert leadership we shall make a complete failure of everything. We simply cannot go ahead unless you come to our rescue."

The President's answer to all this is that the party of which he is the titular head in the last presidential campaign asked for votes and undoubtedly received them on the strength of a promise that should the party succeed in the national election, the relationship which the makers of the Constitution said should exist between the legislative and executive branches of the government would be promptly restored. This was not only a party promise, the President points out, but it was a personal promise on his part. And whatever betides, the President is saying to legislative callers, he intends to live up to the promise.

Harding's Advice Has Been Specific. It can be said for President Harding, and, indeed, should be said for him, that no President within recent generations has given the legislative branch of the government a clearer list of recommendations. When he called the present congress in extra session last year, he told it what he thought it ought to do. Then when the regular session came on in December last year, he submitted a definite legislative program which embodied a large number of recommendations. From time to time since the regular session opened, he has made recommendations that did not equivocate.

In the 14 months since the congress came together it has carried out really only one recommendation of large importance, that for adoption of the budget system. No congress ever had a finer opportunity to make a great record for itself. With an absolutely free hand, it could have carried out the President's recommendations promptly, or it could have improved on them, which would have been better still.

Puts Responsibility on Congress. Obviously the Republican leaders are trying to draw the President into a position with respect to ship subsidy legislation which would not be consistent with his determination to put the responsibility for the enactment of legislation on congress. During the last few days some of the Republicans leaders have said in effect to the President that unless he "asserts his leadership" there will be no subsidy legislation at this session. If there is any legislation the President desires above other before this session ends, it is ship subsidy legislation, but he does not propose to go farther than he has already gone in presenting the subject to congress. His attitude is that if congress will not deal with the subject, the responsibility will be on congress, and not on him.

In all these circumstances, the public must deem it strange that some intelligent leadership is not developed in the legislative body. In the senate, Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts was by the votes of Republican senators chosen leader, but in this position he has been an absolute failure. Close political friends of his in his own state are now calling on him to step forward and show that he really possesses some of the elements of leadership. They are saying to him that he can make his re-election next fall sure by taking hold of the senate situation and bringing some semblance of order out of the existing chaos. In the house of representatives the situation is even worse. The call is not for a dictator in the senate or a dictator in the house, but for wise, far-seeing, statesmanlike leadership.

Disabled Veterans Made Experts. There are at present approximately 600 disabled veterans receiving vocational training in agriculture under the United States veterans' bureau. Fifty per cent of this number are receiving their training in recognized agricultural schools and colleges throughout the country. The others are receiving placement training on dairy farms, ranches and poultry farms, and with fruit growers.

The supervisors of agricultural training of the veterans' bureau keep in close touch with the field for agricultural employment and provide opportunities months in advance for men about to complete training in these schools. In establishing these employment opportunities, many agencies are canvassed, including the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Labor, the civil service commission, national and local farm organizations, national and state agricultural conventions, state fairs, and patriotic and other societies.

Positions for those men who complete placement training are furnished through contact established with county agents and county farm bureaus, local farm organizations, etc. A number of men are going on the land as owners or tenants with the intention of remaining there after rehabilitation.

Many Obtain Good Positions.

One disabled veteran who made an excellent record in an agricultural college has been offered a position with the Department of Agriculture as a cotton breeder at a salary which ranges from $3,000 to $5,000 a year. Three men who have completed their training as dairy farm foremen are now receiving an average of $850 more per year than they were receiving prior to their war service. Seven men who have completed their training as landscape gardeners are receiving an average of $805 more per year than they were receiving prior to their enlistment.

Three veterans who have completed their training as nursery men received an average of $1,225 per annum prior to their enlistment and now, in spite of their disabilities, are receiving an average salary of $2,125 per annum or $900 per year more than they were receiving before the war. Two hundred and twelve men who have completed their courses in general agriculture after an average period of one year of training are now receiving on an average of $498.71 more per annum than they received prior to their war service. They are receiving this increased salary in spite of their disabilities on account of the training which they have received under the veterans' bureau. It is expected that when these men have had more extended practical experience this increase will be considerably greater.

A large number of men are in training in forestry, which is classified as an agricultural pursuit. Six men who have completed their course in forestry after one year and two months of training and whose pre-war salary was an average of $760.00 are now receiving an average salary of $1,712.50 or an increase of $945.83 above their pre-war wage. Another man who has been rehabilitated as a lumberman is now receiving $2,500 per year; his pre-war salary was $1,350. In other words, this man is receiving $1,150 more per year through this vocational training than he received prior to his enlistment. Without this training this man would have been unable to earn a living.

Employers Can Get Trained Men. Other courses which are offered under the general classification of agriculture are: Florists, fruit growers, gardeners, landscape gardeners, park gardeners, orchard farm foremen, management, stock raisers, stock farm foremen, poultry raisers, stock herders and apiculturists.

Approximately 500 men are completing their vocational training under the veterans' bureau every month. Employers who want men trained in agriculture or in any other trade, profession, or vocation should communicate with the employment service of the bureau. These men are especially trained under government supervision and their ability to successfully carry on in the vocation for which they are trained is vouched for by the government.

In vocational schools of all kinds 130,738 students are enrolled. The instruction in vocations is furnished in leading colleges, technical schools, commercial schools as well as in business establishments, shops and on farms. These men are in training in every state in the union and in every large city in the country. In all the large industrial centers these men who have received their intensive training from the government are available for positions. Every vocation is represented and any employer who needs additional personnel will be furnished such personnel from his vicinity in short time by notifying the veterans' bureau.

May Lose Picturesqueness.

The people of Normandy are much concerned about the steady silting up of the Bay of St. Michel, which threatens to ruin the picturesqueness of the famous Mont St. Michel, now linked to the mainland only by an artificial causeway.

Formerly the Mont, which in the course of the centuries has been by turns a Druidical shrine, a Benedictine abbey and a state prison, and which, since its restoration by Viollet-le-Duc, is jealously preserved as an historical monument, was as inaccessible at high tide, except by boat, as its Cornish counterpart, St. Michael's Mount, still is. But the causeway enabled a light railway to run to the very foot of the Mont, and this causeway is stated by experts to be one of the great causes of the silting up, which, it is predicted, will eventually make the Mont just part of the ordinary coastline.

MR. HARDING'S CONTRACT

Every few days some hopeful correspondent in Washington announces that President Harding is growing weary of the fumbling in Congress. Pretty soon we are told that Mr. Harding's patience will be exhausted, and one end of Pennsylvania Avenue will in no uncertain tone hear from the other end what is what.

These stories are told to Mr. Harding. They assume that Mr. Harding was selected at Chicago to accomplish definite things. They assume that Mr. Harding and the Senate oligarchy did not know what they were doing. They assume that what has happened in Washington is not what the Chicago Convention intended to have happen.

There is no reason to believe any of this. What has happened in Washington since March, 1921, is exactly what was promised and planned. Mr. Harding has proved himself a model President according to the specifications. He has done exactly what he was supposed to do, and has done it with a personal graciousness and good humor that have proved to be very winning. Mr. Harding is fulfilling his contract to the letter and in spirit, and if any one is impatient about the results let him blame not Mr. Harding, nor even Mr. Harding's sponsors, but the kind of contract which was adopted.

Mr. Harding's moral contract with the Old Guard was that he should not be in any respect like Woodrow Wilson or Theodore Roosevelt. More concretely the contract was that Mr. Harding, like a seventeenth century Polish King, should reign but not govern. The theory of his nomination was that the centre of power should be in the Senate and not in the White House. Therefore, to ask Mr. Harding to assert himself is to ask him to break a clearly implied agreement by engaging in a rough-and-tumble fight with Congress.

Mr. Harding is in a difficult position. A little experience has shown him that under our system of government party leadership must be concentrated in the President if the national interest is to prevail over local and special interests. But in honor he is pledged to the theory that party leadership should be vested in a commission of elder statesmen. And between his experience and his honor he is torn and he hesitates.

The present Congress has proved up to the hilt the fallacy of the argument that national leadership can be obtained from a clique of Senators or a mob of Congressmen. The proved result of having a President who is conscientiously determined not to interfere is that legislation becomes a riotous scramble of minority interests each bent on rolling its own.

Not a single great question, the tariff, the railroads, the bonus, taxation, the merchant marine, has been considered as a national policy in this Congress. Each of these questions has been considered as a local issue and judged by its immediate effect on the re-election of Congressmen Jones and Senator Simpkins. The Congressman and the President alone has a national constituency, and if he abdicates his leadership legislation becomes a mere tangle among localities.

That is exactly what the present Tariff Bill is. Nobody connected with that bill has considered its effect on the Nation as a whole. It is a bill put together schedule by schedule through efforts of this group of manufacturers and that. With no one to lobby for the Nation, with no one to lobby for all the business interests, the particular lobbies that are influential in particular Congressional districts have written the bill. It is so bad a bill, so outrageous a bill, that if it is passed it will surely wreck the Harding Administration. For the petty interests which have gone into the making of it have not breadth of vision even to calculate its effects on the fortunes of the Republican Party.

It is doubtful whether Mr. Harding is fitted by temperament and knowledge to impose some semblance of order and programme upon Congress. He was selected because he would not do it. He is committed not to do it. He is probably incapable of doing it. He is almost certainly condemned to seeing his Administration nibbled away by one special interest after the other, by one noisy minority after the other, by one insurgent movement after another, as in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Iowa.

For, in the American system of government the President who reigns but does not govern comes ultimately to grief.

WHAT IS THE USE OF BEING USEFUL?

No sane person will dispute that the farmer forms a most necessary and useful part of society. Without him we could not exist. Being most necessary and useful he should receive a large reward for his labor. Both common sense and justice would testify to this. Instead of this the farmer receives the least reward of any worker. He gets only one-eighth or 12 1/2 per cent. of the stuff he produces. It is a shining example of the uselessness, from an economic standpoint, of being useful in capitalist society.

The pursuits that stand out prominently these days as big money makers are the automobile business, the moving picture producers and the bottle liquor industry. This is a shining example of the craziness of capitalist society. What can be more crazy than making plutocrats of those who amuse us and intoxicate us and peasants of those who feed us and clothe us?

This is the year the farmer must look after his own interests. The farmer has a chance to do his duty toward himself by selecting one of his own occupation in thorough sympathy with the farmer element and one who tills the soil and sows the grain as every farmer does. The capitalist voted for his interest in 1920 and if the farmer is going to vote for his interests this fall is the time. Its up to the farmer to make good this year or never. If he is going to allow himself to be the goat for the millionaire rich he has no body to blame but himself. He can carry the day if he will. John A. McSparran is an ideal man, a real dirt farmer, a local Methodist minister, a Sunday School Superintendent, and a stranger. It's the farmer's chance and it must be now or forever hold your tongue.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR BABY WELL

Baby's Shirts, Petticoats and Slips

Shirts: Knitted bands and shirts come in several weights and sizes. It is well to begin with the second size, as the first is soon outgrown. They are all wool, or wool and silk. Silk and wool mixtures are the best.

For hot weather the lightest weight should be selected for most healthy babies. The shirts should open all the way down the front, and they must be large enough so that the sleeves will easily slip on and off. Sometimes a baby may be found whose skin is so delicate that it is hurt by even the smallest amount of wool. For such babies the all-silk or the all-cotton garments may be used. In winter or for very young or weak babies, the shirts and bands should be at least half wool. All young babies should have at least one garment that is part wool.

Petticoats: Part-wool flannel should be used for the petticoats, using the lightest weight for hot weather. Even for the newborn baby, the petticoat should not extend more open all the way down the front, and if the weather is hot, it may be several inches shorter. If you would rather, you may have all the clothing short from the start, skirts may be made so that they close on the shoulder. Muslin petticoats are unnecessary for the young baby.

Slips: Slips are very simply made of fine white cotton materials, such as nainsook, long cloth, or batiste. If made in kimono style, they may have a tuck over each shoulder so that it will be easier for you to make them shorter. Drawstrings in the neck and sleeves will also make it possible to adapt the garment to the baby as he grows larger. No trimming which can scratch or irritate the tender skin of the baby's neck is permitted, and his clothes should not be starched.

The Boy on the Burning Deck.

Senator McCumber, Chairman of the Finance Committee, is not the Casablanca of the Senate. The hot-shot of the Republican and Independent press as well as the explosive shells of the wicked Democratic newspapers have set fire to the deck which is burning beneath his feet but Senator McCumber refuses to desert, and with his coat-tails afire hurries back a deft at the assailants of the Profiteers' Tariff bill, who he conceives to be only the propagandists of the department stores. Here are the two exact words of "Casablanca McCumber":

"Possibly before we get through we will see what is back of the papers that are railing against this tariff bill. I will say to the Senator most candidly that I do not believe the committee is going to be stampeded by anything which comes from a press that represents a propaganda that is making from a thousand to three thousand per cent upon its imports, and that possibly will be presented to the American people before we get through."

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

XXIV. VIEW OF THE EMPLOYEE

The obvious solution of the government's employment problem is the standardization and readjustment of salaries. To be scientific, such readjustment must rest upon a careful reclassification of the service. Conditions are very different now, both in regard to the functions of offices and the cost of living, from what they were when positions in the government service were first classified and salaries assigned to those positions.

It struck me that an interested party in this inquiry into how the government conducts its business was the employee himself. He ought to know from actual daily experience something about the mechanism of the national business and the relations between the working force and employer.

It was clearly impossible to talk to the more than 500,000 men and women who work for the government, but I learned that between 50,000 and 60,000 of them are banded together in an association called the National Federation of Federal Employees. It is a regular labor union, and is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It includes all classes of government workers, technical and scientific men, as well as clerks and unskilled workers.

I asked the president of this employees' union, Luther C. Steward, if he and his associates were authorized to speak for all its membership. He assured me that they were.

So I asked him to tell me about the conditions of government employment and how the business was carried on.

I am glad I did, for what he told me discloses not only facts, but a state of mind existing among the employees which necessarily must be taken into account in any consideration of the efficiency and management of our common business. Here then is what the employees, who speak through Mr. Steward, have to say, and the constructive program they present for the improvement of the service.

The civil service on its human side consists of about 500,000 men and women engaged in the operation of an antiquated patched-up machine. Because of the durability of its vital parts and the faith and ability of the mass of the operatives the machine still functions. But the parts are ill-fitted, and many of them are defective. The managers and superintendents of the establishment, being too often chosen for political reasons, are frequently inept, and the operating system is clumsy and disjointed.

The employees are recruited under a law which provides a test of qualifications, and probably nine-tenths of the rank and file have satisfactorily passed the entrance test. But the better positions, say from $3,000 upward, are usually occupied by political appointees. Another considerable group of employees get their appointments by executive order, waiving civil-service tests of fitness.

The newcomer in the service, therefore, finds himself up against a minimum of opportunity for promotion, with the disheartening knowledge that the advancement which is earned by competence is all too likely to be given to the friend or political supporter of some congressman or executive who wishes to pay a political debt. And the employee is subject to dismissal at the will of the executive of his department, unless he can bring sufficient political influence to bear.

In other words, the civil-service law is not backed up by enforcing power in the Civil Service commission. It merely recruits the applicants for entrance. Thereafter the employee's fate is largely a matter of his own luck and negative passive merit. There is no system by which he may be fitted to the job, and no protection against dismissal, unless the employee himself can show that the reason is political or religious. "For the good of the service," as the law reads, covers every other charge which the executive official may bring. There is no court of appeal.

Such is the oppressive, incentiveless, vitiating atmosphere of the government service. It stifles initiative, frustrates ambitions and reduces the mass of employees to a more or less passive state, which is permeated by a sense of fear.

In such an atmosphere, naturally enough, the physical conditions of employment are far from what they should be, and the government loses efficiency, as does any other employer where the wage scale is inadequate and unstandardized, where sanitary conditions are bad and hours of work too long and irregular.

The wage scale is so low that the Civil Service commission has difficulty in securing properly qualified applicants, and throughout the service the turnover is high. Employees doing the same kind of work often receive widely different rates of pay; experienced workers often receive less than beginners, and virtually every kind of inequality and injustice exists.

Help You Choose Tires

500 miles at 94.48 miles an hour—a relentless grind over a rough-finished, sun-baked concrete and brick pavement at record-breaking speed—that is the grueling test Oldfield Cord Tires underwent successfully at Indianapolis Speedway May 30th. They were on the winner's car for the third successive year and on eight of the ten finishing in the money, upholding the confidence successful race drivers have in the trustworthiness and ability of these tires to meet the greatest demands of speed, endurance and safety. Their records in every other important race have been equally as good.

Consider this achievement along with another test of Oldfield quality made at Wichita, Kansas, this past winter and early spring.

34,525 miles on rutted, icy Kansas roads, running day and night on a Studebaker stock car without a single tire change. This test was made by a group of Wichita automotive dealers in a tire, oil and gasoline economy run. Mayor Kemp of Wichita was official observer and made affidavit to the mileage and service given by Oldfield tires.

You may never subject your tires to the grueling experience of Indianapolis nor the steady grind of bad winter roads, but it is good to know you can get such safety and mileage economy by buying Oldfield tires. Ask your nearest dealer.

165% Increased Business

The buying public is the surest barometer of the value of any article. Their approval of Oldfield value has been demonstrated by the increase of 165% in business for the first five months of 1922 over the corresponding period of 1921.

Agents Everywhere

Labor Costs Ignored in Profiteers' Tariff Bill.

Heretofore the labor cost of an article was regarded by Republican tariff makers as the foundation upon which tariff taxation must rest. In the pending bill this plan has been utterly abandoned, the labor cost bearing no relation whatever to the amount of protection given in the bill. Specific instances of this were recently submitted in the Senate by Senator Simmons (Dem., N. C.), from which the following extracts are taken:

Wrought pipe: Labor cost 18.2 per cent; protection 27 per cent.

Calculating machines: Labor cost 25.7 per cent; protection 30 per cent.

Tin plate and terneplate: Labor cost 5.9 per cent; protection 8.2 per cent.

Brass and bronze: Labor cost 30.4 per cent; protection 46.2 per cent.

Electric machinery, apparatus and supplies: Labor cost 23.9 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Stamped ware: Labor cost 23.4 per cent; protection 40 to 60 per cent.

Enamel ware: Labor cost 25.7 per cent; protection 5 cents a pound to 50 per cent ad valorem.

Bath tubs, lavatories and sinks: Labor cost 30.5 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Table cutlery: Labor cost 43.5 per cent; protection 132 per cent.

Razors: Labor cost 16.1 per cent; protection 175 per cent.

Knives, except table knives: Domestic labor cost, 46 per cent; protection 166 per cent.

All other cutlery: Labor cost 36.7 per cent; protection 134 per cent.

Edged tools: Labor cost 32.3 per cent; protection 140 per cent.

Files: an article in common use in every household and on every farm: Labor cost 29.3 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Hardware: Labor cost 29.3 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Wire: Labor cost 18.6 per cent; protection 35 per cent.

Aluminum ware: Labor cost 17.7 per cent; household ware made of aluminum, 15 cents per pound and 60 per cent; electric attachments, 15 cents a pound and 70 per cent.

Clocks: Labor cost 33.6 per cent; protection 41 per cent.

Watches, including parts of watches and clocks: Labor cost 39.6 per cent; protection 53 per cent.

Concerning this data Senator Simmons said:

"I am taking advantage of this occasion to put in the Record some matter, and it is not graveyard stuff either; it is live stuff, pertinent to the duties of this bill. I have obtained these figures through experts furnished me by the Tariff Commission. The calculations have not been worked out by free-traders; they have not been framed up by tax-dodgers as many of the figures that are brought in here from the other side have been framed up by people who are seeking to gouge the American public. They have been prepared for me by Government officials—experts and the basis of the calculations are the official figures."

WHAT HAPPENED TO BIG INCOMES

In 1916 sixty-five persons in the United States paid income taxes on amounts exceeding $1,000,000 and their total income was $152,650,245. In 1920, according to the preliminary report, only thirty-three persons paid the tax on incomes over $1,000,000, and the total income for the thirty-three was $77,078,139. But of listed incomes in all classes between $1,000 and $50,000 there was an increase in 1920, astonishingly large at the bottom of the scales and lessening toward the upper groups. Above $50,000 every class has dwindled in size. As a result the number of taxpayers has grown, the tax collector dhas greatly diminished.

Two theories may account for the change; the average citizen may be making more money while large fortunes decline or the average citizen may be paying the tax while the wealthy are learning how to dodge it. Of the two the second looks more reasonable. Nothing is more highly improbable than that the comparatively poor are making money while the excessively rich lose it. Our economic system has never functioned that way and Bedford County citizens will not testify to such a condition.

As incomes mount, the pressure of the Federal tax increases and opportunities and temptations to avoid it increase in equal proportion. By investing in non-taxable securities and through other expedients the recipients of large incomes are evading their share of the burden. When a little ingenuity will save a fortune from the Collector of Internal Revenue the ingenuity will not long be lacking. The number of large taxable incomes has been cut in half. It will be cut again and again so long as the inducement lasts, and the Harding administration continues to cease to function as it has.

"THE BRAND"

By Rex Beach. This is the greatest of Rex Beach's thrilling Productions. All aboard for the gold fields of Alaska. See the frozen Northland in the frenzied Klondike days. There's a thrill every minute, a desperate fight scenes, raging snow storms, sensational raid in the City of Gold, the North West Mounted Police in action. If you like stories of the Great outdoors, if you like pictures such as those produced by William S. Hart, then you will more than like "THE BRAND". Also "Snub Pollard in 'Do Me a Favor'."

All the above pictures have played the largest cities for admission up to $2.50, our admission is 10 and 30c on all of them. Come! see the greatest pictures ever produced.

Three shows every Saturday start at 7, 8:30 and 10 p. m. other days 7:15 and 9 p. m. (Except Three Musketeers)

MT. UNION HOME COMING SERVICE

Nestled among the foothills of the eastern slope of the Allegheny Mountains in Lincoln Township may be found what is known as Mt. Union Church of the Evangelical Association, established at a time when the surrounding country was a vast wilderness. Above the Church on a beautiful knoll are the white headstones which mark the resting place of many of the pioneers of the country round about.

The old Church center has stood as a reminder to the country side that the world has a sky, that life has height as well as length and breadth. There those who have left the downward drag have been braced by the upward climb. There young people have heard inspiring interpretations of the faith of their fathers which has had a controlling and abiding influence upon their lives.

Not only in the country for miles round has the old Church been a benediction, but also out from its influences have gone youth who later, elsewhere, have stood for the rugged virtues which they saw exemplified in the old Church.

On Sunday morning June 18th, several hundred people came from far and near, bringing with them their lunch, and under a clear sky, spent the day in worship, sacred song service and renewing acquaintances. The day was ideal, and in no way was marred the sanctity for which the Church has so long stood.

The splendid music led by Prof. Koontz of Bedford and his orchestra was enjoyed by all present and added greatly to the success of the meeting.

The gathering was favored by the presence of several people who as pioneers of the country helped to build and who worshipped in the original church, and as they are travelling down the western slope of life, fast approaching the setting sun, they entered into the spirit of the occasion in such a benedicting manner as to make it a joy to all.

Near the cemetery, where lie the bodies of the "Lost Children of the Alleghenies", George and Joseph Cox, the four surviving sisters and brother, met and broke bread together.

Not content with seeing only the persons present, there was remembered also the aged and infirm of the community who were visited by many and comfort and cheer carried to them.

This is a humble little church brightening its small corner and rendering its best service to the world in its own humble way, and when there are those who talk deprecatingly of the small church, there are those who say as Daniel Webster in his great defense of Dartmouth College, "I know it is a small church, but, sir, there be those who love it."

Statisticians have figured it out that 135 years from now, the span of the average life will be 100 years. One can hardly wait.

Nowadays no article on international politics seems complete unless it contains a reference to laying all the cards upon the table.

The son in college who writes his father that he is burning the midnight oil doesn't add that it is costing him 23 cents a gallon now.

France has so often been the battle ground of Europe that many of her people have come to regard an army as an absolute necessity.

"Better speech means better business," says the National Council of Teachers of English. What a lot of bad language the world must have seen using!

Burning the witches is no longer practiced in the United States, but so-called doctors who advertise that they cast out devils still find persons sufficiently credulous to employ them.

Advertising men at their New York convention announced pretty men's pictures would no longer be used in advertising but just plain ordinary looking chaps. Is this a boost for democracy or Nick Altrock?

The war material manufacturers ought to be able to turn their plants into plowshare and pruning hook foundries. Even the breweries were able to shift their production to soft drinks and other innocuous commodities.

John Defies the Hoodoo

By CLAIRE SMITH

Copyright 1922 Western Newspaper Union

"Seems to me that people are getting tired of being insured," said John Hambleton to his pretty wife, Elsie, as he hung up his hat and took off his overcoat. He cast himself down disconsolately upon the lounge and Elsie sat down beside him.

"Poor business today, dear?" she asked, with her arms around his neck. "Not a cent," answered her husband. "Nor yesterday, either. Hardly ten dollars' worth this week. How are we going to make the next payment on our home?"

Elsie looked about her, at the pretty living room. It was not a big house, but it was an uncommonly comfortable one, and it was conveniently situated within commuting distance of the city.

They had been lured into the country by an advertisement of a firm of real estate agents, which stated that a new house, with "every convenience," could be purchased for three hundred dollars down, and a little more than ten times that sum "the same as rent." John Hambleton had paid off about two thousand dollars, and now it seemed as though his home was to be taken away. The receipts from his business were steadily dwindling.

Perhaps it was the diversity of his interests that made him unsuccessful. After all, it is difficult to argue convincingly upon the necessity of taking out burglar insurance when you have just been telling another man that the greatest danger to a house comes from fire. And John Hambleton was an agent for all forms of insurance—life, accident, fire and burglary. So here he was at thirty-five, with a home that was slipping out of his grasp.

"I've spoken to Simpson," pursued John mechanically. "I asked him to get one installment go. He laughed at me. He said that if I didn't pay up sharp on the day it was due, he would take back the house."

"But can he take it away, John?" asked Elsie in terror.

"It seems he can. He's got me hard and fast on the agreement, sure enough. And as it looks to me, Elsie, we are going to lose our home on the first of next month."

"John," said Elsie solemnly, "do you know what day of the week we moved out here?"

"Friday?" asked her husband gloomily.

Elsie drew out her handkerchief and began to cry.

Their ill luck had, indeed, been phenomenal.

"Well, we'll go," said John savagely. "We'll give the thief his house, with fire insurance and burglary insurance thrown in."

They engaged a little city flat, which they found they could obtain without prepayment. They were to move in on the 21st.

"John," exclaimed Elsie suddenly, "do you know what day of the week we are going to move back to town?"

"Yes, I do," John answered morosely. "It's Friday, because we can get a moving van five dollars cheaper on that day. And may the hoodoo come along with us and do his worst."

The day arrived; the house was emptied and locked, and the household goods piled in the van. Elsie and John made their way to the station.

They reached town without an accident and engaged a taxicab to take them to their new home. "We may as well be extravagant," said John. "Things couldn't be much worse."

But worse things happened. A crash, a jar, and the vehicle was thrown on its side. John emerged bleeding from a shower of glass. Elsie, uninjured except for a bad shaking, rose to her feet beside him, and they stood staring at the wreckage.

The taxicab had collided with a large motor van—their motor van, bound for the same destination.

The hoodoo showed no signs of letting up.

"You don't take furniture insurance, do you, John?" asked Elsie, thoughtfully.

"No," answered John, rubbing his chin.

They found their flat, entered, and sat down on the floor. It had been newly furnished, as they discovered about twenty seconds later.

They lunched very well at a hotel nearby, escaping with nothing more serious than a plateful of soup over Elsie's dress. When they got home a telegram was awaiting John. He tore it open. It was from Simpson.

"Your house struck by lightning and burned down," it read. "Can offer you terms."

"John," said Elsie, "didn't you carry fire insurance?"

"Yes—what?" John's mouth opened, and then he seized his wife by the hands and they danced all over the varnished floor.

"I'll get the whole four thousand!" shouted John. "I'll pay the balance and it'll be ours, with two thousand to spare. I guess that hoodoo didn't know about fire insurance."

"Let's hurry to the insurance office," John said to his practical wife. "You know, the company may go bankrupt before we get there."

Source of instruction.

"Of course you have studied political economy."

"I don't brag about the fact," replied Elsie. "My constituents have gotten into the way of wanting to take any suggestions offered to them and not get them out of their heads."

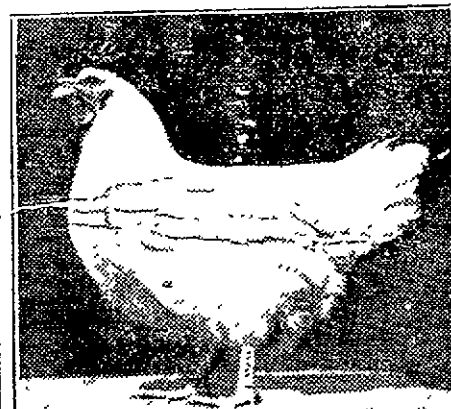

POULTRY

INTEREST IN LAMONA BREED

White-Egg-Laying General Purpose Fowl Developed by Department of Agriculture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Lamona, the new white-egg-laying general-purpose fowl originated and being developed by the United States Department of Agriculture, made its first public appearance at the Madison Square Garden poultry show, held in New York from January 25 to 30, where 15 of the birds were shown in the open classes. In addition to the Lamonas, and other government-bred fowls of standard breeds, the department put on an extensive exhibit consisting of models of poultry houses, a display of feathers of the standard breeds, appliances such as feed hoppers, brood coops, and a fattening battery. A series of panels, made up of photographs, charts, and placards, showed the more important standard breeds, the feeding of hens for egg production, the preparation of birds for exhibition, the advantages of early hatching, the improvement resulting from the use of a high quality sire, capons and caponizing, culling the farm flock, and the pedigree breeding of poultry.

A number of department representatives took part in the program of the show and gave information to the visitors concerning the educational exhibit. They reported an extraordinary interest on the part of the public and various poultry breeders in the Lamona breed, many persons desiring to obtain breeding birds. The department believes it necessary to perfect them still more as regards certain characteristics, and it is not likely that any will be for sale during the coming year.

GRADING EGGS IS ESSENTIAL

Ungraded, Unstandardized Product Is More or Less of an Uncertain Quantity.

When pullets begin laying, their eggs are not up to standard weight. Therefore, grading eggs is essential, not only from the producer's standpoint but from the buyers', for an ungraded, unstandardized egg is more or less of an uncertain quantity. The marketing of such a product is never advised since it puts an unnecessary handicap on the buyer who never knows what quality he will receive. The buyer in order to protect himself against loss must pay a correspondingly low price. Fresh eggs should be graded by size to meet the requirements of the market. The first grade of eggs ordinarily consists of clean, fresh, reasonably full, strong, sweet eggs with an average weight of 46 pounds net per standard 30 dozen case or over 24 ounces to the dozen. The second grade must weigh 44 pounds or more net per 30 dozen case. The third grade must weigh 41 pounds or more net per 30 dozen case. They also make a grade of puller's eggs which weigh 34 pounds or more net for 30 dozen or 16 ounces per dozen.

POULTRY NOTES

Apoplexy and egg-bound are almost always the result of excessive fatness among the hens.

The young chick drinks a great deal of water and plenty of it is necessary for its health and development.

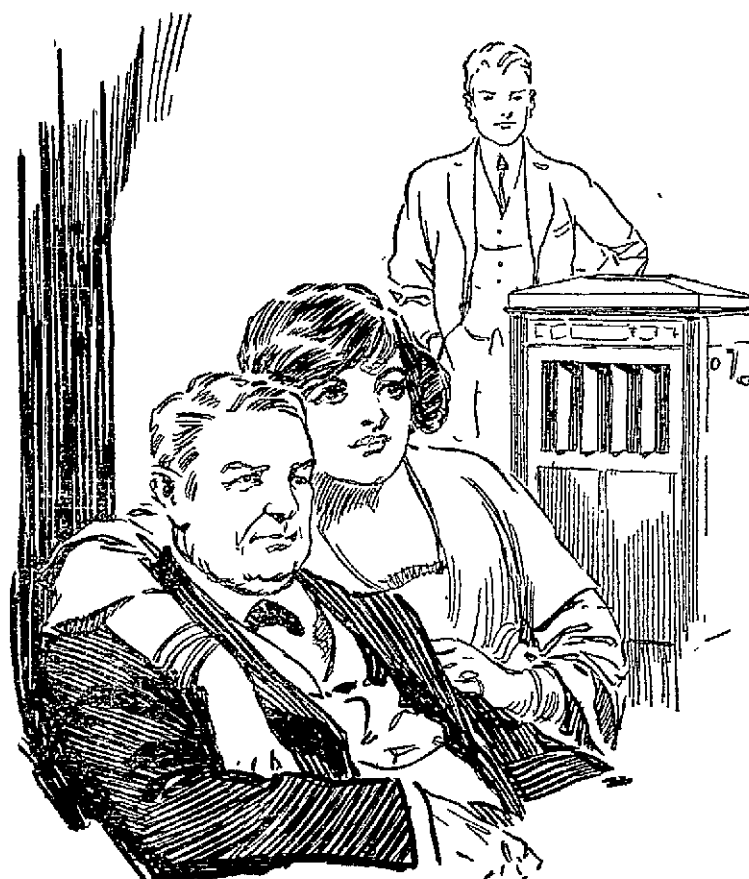

The first food the chick should receive after being removed from the nest or incubator is clean, fresh water with the chill removed.

Don't feed any more mash at one time than the fowls will eat up perfectly clean. To allow more is not only wasteful but promotes unsanitary conditions.

Variety in rations is one of the most important things connected with good feeding. Sometimes even a faulty ration will give fair results because of the variety that enters into it.

Don't expect the fowls to find grit for themselves. No matter how much range they may have it is best to keep grit, charcoal, oyster shells, etc., constantly before them.

Accumulated moisture in the poultry house and an overcrowded condition are directly responsible for the colds and rump which weaken the vitality of the birds, causing them to easily succumb to other diseases.

"Play me again that old refrain"

HOW happy a thing it is to turn back the pages of Time and awaken again the hallowed memories of other years. Music is the magic key that opens the door of the past. Old melodies, favorite hymns, songs of long ago—how often do you hear these dear old tunes? Not often enough, you will decide, after you play a few of these Columbia Records on your phonograph.

The full beauty and feeling of the melody is brought out by the New Process Columbia Records. It is as though the artist had breathed his very soul upon the surface of the disc. All the world of music is yours to choose from. You will find a Columbia Record for every one of your favorite songs, sung and recorded in just the way your heart would choose.

In the bustle of today, don't forget the music that meant so much in other years. There are certain songs that know no age nor period—airs that are a treat to every one in the family.

Tunnels and Geology.

Geologists owe much of their knowledge of the Alps to the tunnels which have been bored through these mountains to make railway routes between the northern and southern parts of Europe. There has been no more important discovery made in this way than during the construction of the Loetschberg tunnel. This was the unexpected piercing of a great ice seam in the center of a mass of much younger Tertiary stone.

The truth is that men have always found USCO an outstanding money's worth no matter what its price.

Today at $10.90 USCO maintains its established standard of quality.

And because of the new price, it sets a new index of tire value.

Men who have used USCO have never been inclined to measure its value by the general run of tires.

Briefly Answered.

The English manner of today, of what are called the classes, is the growth of only a century or so, John Galsworthy writes in the Yale Review. There was probably nothing at all like it in the days of Elizabeth or even of Charles II. The English manner was still racy when the inhabitants of Virginia, as we are told, sent over to ask that there might be dispatched to them some hierarchical assistance for the good of their souls, and were answered "D—n your souls, grow tobacco."

KEEP dust, air and mold from jellies and jams with Parowax, and they'll remain clean and tasty for years. Dip fruit and vegetable jars into melted Parowax and insure against fermentation. Sealing them with Parowax makes preserving a source of real pride to the housewife.

Only be sure you get Parowax, don't ask for just paraffine. Parowax is extra-refined—pure as the food you eat. Ask for the dust-proof package containing four large cakes. Costs little. Your grocer has it.

Cow in a China Shop.

Mention of a bull in a china shop suggests destruction swift and complete, but a cow spent a quarter of an hour in a china shop in the main street of Tipperary without breaking or upsetting a single article. Entering the shop while the owner was absent, it went behind the counter and then passed into a room at the back. Turning round, it reentered the shop on the outside of the counter and, treading carefully, left without doing the slightest damage, to the great surprise of the crowd outside.—London Daily Mail.

EXECUTORS' SALE of Valuable REAL ESTATE

Estate of Louis Saupp, late of Bedford Borough, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, deceased.

The undersigned Executors of the estate of Louis Saupp, late of Bedford Borough, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, deceased, will offer at public sale on Thursday, June 29th, 1922 the following described real estate:

On the premises at one o'clock p. m.

Tract No. 1. A lot of ground on East Pitt street, Bedford Borough, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, fronting thirty feet, more or less, on the Lincoln Highway and extending back at the same width two hundred and forty feet to an alley, adjoining lands of Mrs. Elmira Swartz and having thereon erected a two story frame dwelling occupied by Forest Reighard.

Immediate thereafter, at two o'clock P. M. on the premises known as the Saupp Fair Ground Farm:

A valuable tract of land fronting fourteen hundred sixty feet on the Lincoln Highway adjoining the Borough of Bedford, lands of Frank L. Arnold, the Bedford County Fair Association, et al., containing one hundred fifty acres, more or less; one-half cleared and under cultivation, the balance in timber, improved with a large frame dwelling and bank barn and out-buildings.

Also; a large two-story frame dwelling used as a tenant house and in good repair.

This property will be sold as a whole. Blue-prints showing exact lines will be furnished upon application to the Executors.

At the same time and place we will offer a tract of timberland in Bedford Township, on the East side of Wills Mountains adjoining the Todd Spring lands of Bedford Borough; lands of Edward Evans, et al., containing two hundred acres, more or less, well set in timber. This tract is about two miles removed from tract No. 2.

Tract No. 4. A lot of ground situate in Bedford Borough, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, fronting on the North side of the Lincoln Highway, adjoining lands of Elmira Minnick, et al., and known as the Boydstown School property.

Terms: ten percent cash on day of sale and the balance in twenty days thereafter when the Deeds will be delivered.

Quenched Love Affair. When I was in the third grade in school I was quite "crazy" about a boy who sat across the aisle from me. One Monday morning, a few minutes before the 9 o'clock bell rang, I was sitting in my seat studying. The boy came into the room. He walked up to my desk and said: "Say, Mary, Saturday Howard and I went fishing and I caught a fish that long," and as he threw out his hand, he slapped me across the face. And so ended my first love affair.—Exchange.

A Generation.

Webster merely defines a generation generally, as "the average life of man, or the ordinary period of time at which one rank follows another, or father is succeeded by child." The Standard dictionary says: "Commonly estimated at one-third of a century." The Century dictionary states that "the historical average is commonly reckoned at about thirty years."

GOOD EATING

A good goulash is a dish not to be despised. The simplest of foods may be most appetizing if carefully prepared and seasoned, the most complex food may be spoiled by the handling.

Hungarian Goulash.—Take one pound of veal from the shoulder, cut in small pieces and brown in a tablespoonful of drippings. Remove the veal to a casserole, add four tablespoonfuls of drippings to the frying pan and cook one cupful of diced onion until yellow, then add the onions to the veal and three tablespoonfuls of flour to the drippings and reserve to add for the gravy. To the veal and onions add 1 1/2 cupfuls of boiling water, cover and cook slowly for three hours; an hour before serving add two cupfuls of diced potatoes and one of diced turnips. Cook until tender, add the fat and flour to the casserole and serve from the casserole.

Melt four tablespoonfuls of fat, add one tablespoonful of minced onion, and cook until soft; add four tablespoonfuls of flour, seasoning to taste, and three cupfuls of tomato; cook, stirring constantly until smooth and thick. Cook five minutes, then add one cupful of grated cheese and the spaghetti, mixing with a fork lightly. Pile in the center of a hot platter, garnish with strips of boiled ham.

Veal Soup.—Take two pounds of the knuckle of veal, cover with water and cook until the veal is tender. There should be five or six cupfuls of stock. Add two cupfuls of diced potatoes to the stock and cook until tender. Cut the meat in small cubes, add them to the cooked potatoes, 1 1/2 tablespoonfuls of mushroom catchup, one-half teaspoonful of salt and pepper to season. Thicken slightly with a tablespoonful of flour mixed with one tablespoonful of butter, and when well cooked, to the meat and stock. Chop one hard-boiled egg and pour the meat and vegetables over it. Lay one-half lemon, thinly sliced, over the meat and serve hot.

LESSON FOR JUNE 25

REVIEW: JUDAH'S PROSPERITY AND ADVERSITY

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."—Ps. 33:12.
PRIMARY AND JUNIOR TOPIC.—Men Who Obeyed God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—True and False Leaders of Judah.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Some Lessons From Judah's History.

I. Central Thought of Each Lesson Gathered Around the Key Words of the Day's Lesson Subject, Namely, Prosperity and Adversity.

A good outline is the following from Crannell's Pocket Lessons:

1. Judah's Prosperity. Based on—
(1) Reliance on God, lesson 1.
(2) Courageous Venture for God, lesson 2.
(3) Business Methods for God, lesson 3.
(4) The Vision of God, lesson 3.
(5) The Law and Leadership of God, lesson 7.
(6) Wise Leadership Back to God, lesson 8.
2. Judah's Adversity. Due to—
(1) Presuming Upon God's Blessing, lesson 4.
(2) Presuming Upon God's Purpose, lesson 9.
(3) Rejecting God's Word, lesson 10.
(4) Persecuting God's Messenger, lesson 11.
(5) Disloyalty to God and Man, lesson 12.

II. Golden Text Review.

Assign the texts to your class the preceding Sunday and ask them to show how the lesson illumines the text, or ask the class to prepare on all the texts and have the members of the class draw the text and give the answer.

III. Character Study or Portrait Review.

Assign the following characters the Sunday before: Asa, Josiah, Jehoiada, Uzziah, Isiah, Hezekiah, Hilkiah, Jeremiah, Baruch, Jehoiakim, Ebed-melech, Zedekiah.

IV. The Summary Method.

This method calls for the salient facts of each lesson with a statement of its outstanding teaching.

Note the following suggestions:

Lesson 1. Asa cleared the land of idolatry and called upon Judah to seek the Lord. Because he rested upon the Lord, God gave him victory over his enemies.

Lesson 2. Athaliah attempted to destroy the seed royal and then usurp the throne. Jehoiada checkmated her by hiding away Josiah for six years. At an appointed time Josiah was crowned king and the usurper slain. Every attempt to thwart God's purpose fails.

Lesson 3. Jesus arose from the dead, showed himself to His disciples and sent them forth as witnesses for Him. Certainty of the resurrection of Christ is essential to witness for Him.

Lesson 4. Uzziah made a notable civic and military record but in his pride he presumptuously intruded into the priest's office. As a judgment God smote him with leprosy. "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall."

Lesson 5. Isiah's vision of God brought him to a sense of his sinfulness. Man's supreme need today is a vision of God.

Lesson 6. Isiah foresaw the end of all strife in the world through the establishment of Christ's kingdom. Peace and restoration shall come to the earth when Christ shall come and remove from men's hearts the cause for strife.

Lesson 7. Hezekiah led his people back to God. This he did by means of the passover feast. The only way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united is around the crucified Lord.

Lesson 8. Through the repairing of the temple the law of God was found. When it was read before the king it brought penitence and sorrow. God accepted his penitence and postponed the evil day.

Lesson 9. Jeremiah was arrested and brought to trial because he boldly proclaimed God's word to the nation. The one whom God calls to proclaim His word should faithfully discharge his duty regardless of what men may do unto him.

Lesson 10. Jehoiakim tried to destroy God's Word by burning it. Trying to destroy God's Word will not avert His judgments.

Lesson 11. Because of Jeremiah's fidelity to God he was cast into prison, casting the prophet into the dungeon will not turn aside God's judgments.

Lesson 12. Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem and carried away the people captives. Though God's judgments tarry they eventually fall.

In His Steps. For even heretofore were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps.—1 Peter 2:21.

Trusting Men. The man who trusts men will make fewer mistakes than he who distrusts them.—Cavour.

Silence Is Golden. Well-timed silence hath more eloquence than speech. Martin Parquhar Tupper.

A CALL TO THE PUBLIC!

It is now six weeks since we have opened the Fort Bedford Garage under the firm name of the Fort Bedford Auto Co. The time is short and yet we can point with a justified feeling of pride to our accomplishments. Without fear of contradiction we enumerate as follows:

PRICES OF TIRES AND TUBES HAVE BEEN CUT IN HALF.
MECHANIC CHARGES BY THE HOUR FROM $1.00 TO 75c.
STORAGE CHARGES TO 50 and 75c PER DAY FROM $1.00 UPWARD
MONTHLY STORAGE FROM $8.00 DOWN TO $3.00 PER MONTH.

STILL WE INTEND TO FIGHT FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE PEOPLE. Some are smart enough to see this. Others are influenced and are working against their own interest by not supporting us. SHOULD WE RENT OR CLOSE OUR GARAGE TOMORROW, PRICES WOULD AT ONCE RETURN TO OLD FIGURES. Many garages, many business men, all the town loafers and bums are working against us. But we will continue in our way.

Hydra-headed combinations have never had long life. Public opinion is honest and fair and will not permit wrong to rule, if they see it. History repeats itself. In 1872, as a boy, had to fight a like combination and everybody knows the result, so will it be today.

The town Council refuses to grant us the right of a street sign at our own property, a privilege enjoyed by everybody, and gives our property right to a syndicated combination of Inn & Garage to the shame of Justice and honesty in generalizing town council we do injustice to a minority and in near future will publish the names of those who are the men, perverting their office as public officials to the use and benefit of syndicated corporations. We owe this duty to the public and ourselves and will now as before act unafraid despite all threats and annoyances.

NOTICE

With the near approach of the Fourth of July attention is called to the ordinance prohibiting the firing of guns, pistols, firecrackers, squibs or explosives of any kind within the borough limits and providing a penalty for violation of the same. No reasonable and patriotic citizen should object to the proper and rational use of fireworks on the Fourth, but the practice of beginning days and even weeks before that time, and especially the practice of firing them off on the principal business and residential streets and sidewalks of the town, to the annoyance and possible injury of others, cannot be permitted.

S. R. Longenecker, Burgess.
